COOPER LEADS DAVEY BY 160,000 PARTIAL STATE RETURNS SHOW

Entire Republican State Ticket Swept Into Office; Donahey's Successor Will Have Favorable Legislature; Judge Geiger Wins

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 7.—Precincts reporting late are slightly reducing the Hoover lead, but he still has over 400,000 majority with some 2,700 precincts yet to report.

Reports from 6,784 out of 8,996 precincts show Hoover 1,154,313; Smith 726,547.

Myers Y. Cooper, Republican, had increased his lead over Martin L. Davey, Democrat, to 160,995 votes in the governorship race on unofficial returns from 6860 of the 8999 precincts in the state today.

Their total vote in these precincts: Cooper, 987,004; Davey, 826,009.

For judge of the supreme court 5,328 precincts gave Day 556,347; Allen, 530,424; Geiger, 381,230; Monnett, 183,152; Dunlavy, 182,947; Talcott, 70,834.

Reports from 5,963 precincts gave for senator, long term, Fess, 881,478; Truax, 584,110; for short term Burton, 885,013; Hunt, 557,110.

In 1924, President Calvin Coolidge polled a plurality of 698,242 over John W. Davis, in Ohio. The figure was a record and political leaders doubted it would soon be surpassed.

Cooper, on the face of early returns, gained slowly, but suddenly he began to spur in sections which had almost been conceded to Davey.

The Cincinnati, like Hoover, polled strong majorities in counties heretofore considered rock ribbed Democratic strongholds and piled up unexpected totals in such cities as Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus and Toledo.

Cooper will succeed Governor Vic Donahey, next January 11, when Donahey retires voluntarily at the end of his third consecutive term as chief executive.

The election marked a successful "come-back" on the part of Cooper who two years ago was defeated by Governor Donahey by 17,000 votes.

After his defeat in 1926 Cooper entered the primary right this year and waged a vigorous campaign.

He won the Republican nomination over Congressman James T. Begg of Sandusky, at the August primary and Begg subsequently campaigned for him.

HERBERT HOOVER TO HAVE STRONG PARTY CONGRESS SUPPORT

Capture Seven New Seats; Five Are In Balance

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Herbert Hoover will have a stronger Republican congress working with him after March 4, than President Coolidge had.

Republicans have captured four Democratic seats in the senate and three in the house and their chances are excellent for increasing these gains in the closely fought contests still being counted in wavering states.

There were five Democratic senate seats which hung so narrowly in the balance that the result could not be announced twelve hours after the polls had closed. Inasmuch as not a single Republican seat seemed still at stake, it was reasonable to assume, the Republicans have been able to kill the insurgent balance of power in the senate and have strengthened their majority to such an extent that their control cannot be questioned.

The doubtful house contests were being even more closely fought, some resting among 100 disputed votes. This doubtful classification attached itself to eight Republican house seats and twenty-four belonging now to the Democrats. It was likewise a reasonable assumption that the Republican gains in the house might reach as many as twenty of the Democratic chairs.

In this situation the lineup of the senate stood:

Republicans 52, Democrats 36; doubtful Democrats 5; vacancies 2.

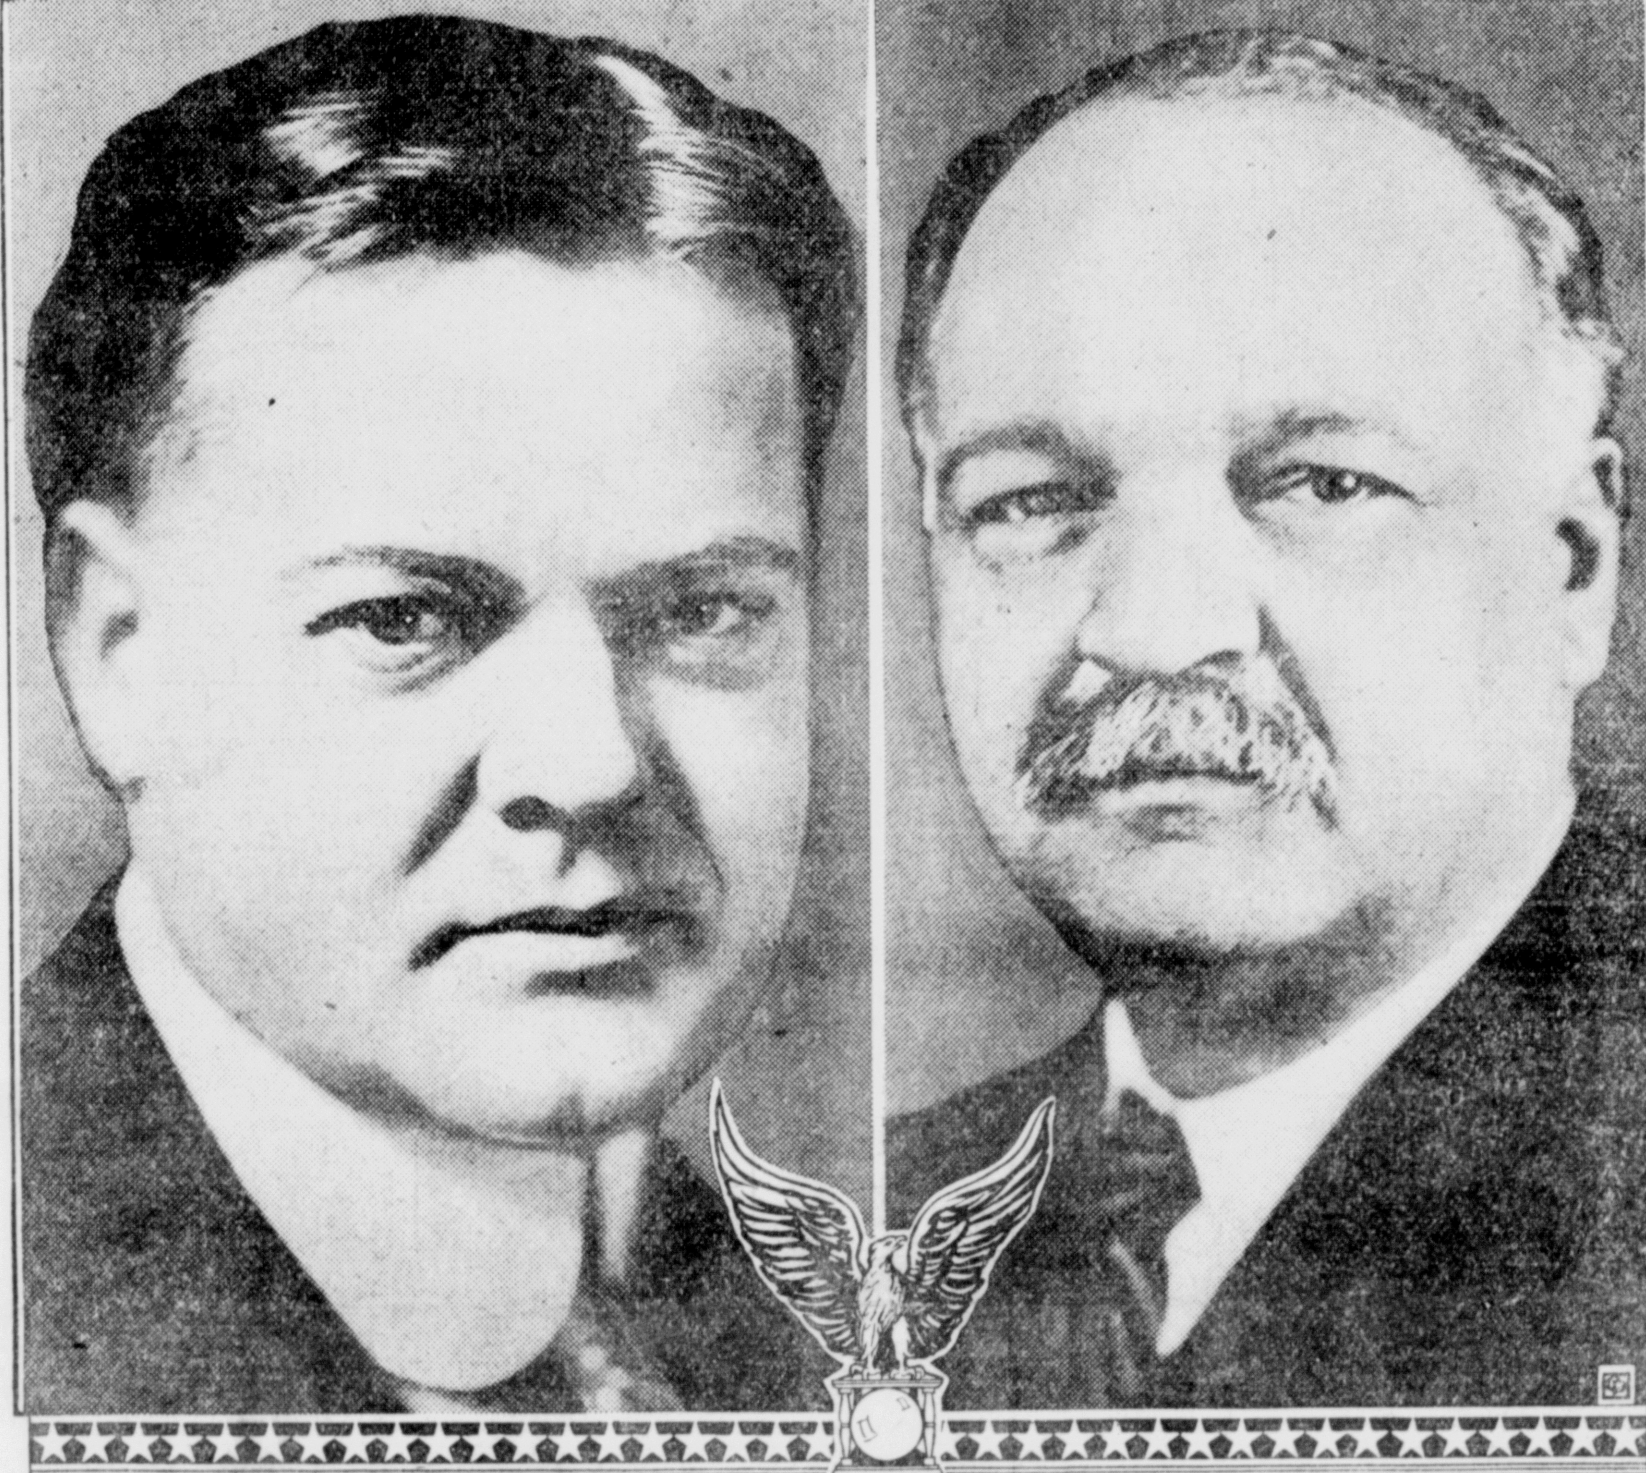

The house lineup was:

Republicans 236; Democrats 154; doubtful 32. (Republicans 8, Democrats 24).

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES WIN

Myers Y. Cooper

SIMEON D. FESS

T. E. BURTON

The complete Republican state slate was returned victor at the polls Tuesday, it was apparent Wednesday as late returns continued to pile up a lead for Myers Y. Cooper. Republican candidate for governor, over Martin L. Davey, Democrat. Senator Fess and Senator-elect Burton won easier victories over their opponents in Ohio.

COUNTY CASTS 1 3,169 VOTES; NEARLY 2,000 MORE THAN 1924

Greene County's "March to the polls" Tuesday did not reach the stampede that was expected but the total Presidential vote cast was nevertheless one of the heaviest in its history, exceeding that recorded four years ago by 1,646.

Calvin Coolidge carried this county by a four to one plurality four years ago whereas Herbert Hoover's large majority over Alfred E. Smith was on a three to one basis.

Four years ago Vic Donahey, Democratic candidate for governor, received 172 more votes than Harry Davis, his Republican opponent, in this county, marking the first time in years this has occurred. Tuesday, however, Myers Y. Cooper, Republican candidate for governor, was given two votes to every one for Martin L. Davey, Democrat, his majority in this county being nearly 4,000 votes. The total vote cast in Greene County for President Tuesday was 13,169 against 11,523 four years ago.

In 1924 Coolidge polled 8,419 votes to 2,471 for Davis, 628 for LaFollette, all others receiving fourteen. Tuesday Hoover received 9,948 votes, Smith, 3,172, and forty-nine represented the combined votes of four candidates of minor parties.

With generally fair weather prevailing, Greene Countians crowded the polls during the morning hours and by noon two thirds of the eligible vote had been recorded at last in Xenia city, where the balloting was brisk all day long.

ROBINSON CALMLY PLANNING DUCK HUNT

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 7.—Senator Joseph T. Robinson defeated for the vice presidency, planned to go duck hunting today.

Calm as unfavorable returns came in, Senator Robinson refused to comment.

With relatives and a few close friends, he got the news last night by wire and radio. As he read bulletins by private wire from New York, Mrs. Robinson twirled the dials of the family radio set to pick up from outlying points.

GREENE COUNTY HELPS SWELL REPUBLICAN VOTE

Republican Stronghold Remains In Line; Predicted Close Local Races Fail To Appear; Wright And Chambliss Win

Taking the nation as a whole for a model, Republicans in Greene County won a complete victory at the polls Tuesday and gave Herbert Hoover, Republican nominee, an unofficial majority over Governor Alfred E. Smith of 6,800, with all of the forty-eight precincts heard from.

Greene County, normally Republican, decided to stay so and gave Hoover a total of 9,948 votes as compared to 3,172 for Smith, with presidential candidates of the four other minor parties receiving a combined vote of forty nine.

The Republican landslide in this county also extended down the line from state, district and judicial to county offices.

Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, Republican gubernatorial nominee, carried Greene County over Martin

WIFE OF SENATOR REED SMOOT DIES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Mrs. Smoot, wife of Senator Reed Smoot of Provo, Utah, died here today at 7 a. m. as the result of a general breakdown which has kept her an invalid for two years.

Mrs. Smoot was 62 years old. Sen. Smoot was at her bedside when death came. He had given up all political activities when her condition became serious several days ago. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

CONCEDES ELECTION NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—John R. Raskob, Democratic national chairman, at 12:40 o'clock this morning conceded the election of Herbert Hoover.

A statement issued at Democratic national headquarters by Mr. Raskob said:

"The Democratic party has made a gallant and clean fight for the principles in which it believes.

"The verdict of the American people has been rendered and, in accordance with Democratic principles, we cheerfully accept the will of the majority and shall take our place in the ranks of the majority of American citizens who desire the future welfare of our country."

"JOHN J. RASKOB."

L. Davey, his Democratic opponent, by a two to one ratio, receiving a majority of nearly 4,000 votes with returns obtained from forty-five out of the forty-five precincts Cooper received 8,949 votes against Davey's 4,253.

As far as local races were concerned, the Republicans had everything their own way.

Ohmer Tate was re-elected sheriff, Harvey Elam, clerk of courts, A. E. Beam and J. Harve Lackey, county commissioners; Miss Helen Dadds, treasurer; J. Carl Marshall, prosecutor; Dr. F. M. Chambliss, coroner and S. C. Wright, probate judge.

Dr. W. T. Ungard, Xenia, Democrat.

ILLINOIS HOOVER MAJORITY 400,000

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Election officials predicted today on the basis of reports from 4,973 of the states 6,317 precincts that Herbert Hoover's plurality in Illinois would reach 400,000 votes.

In the foregoing number of precincts Hoover has 1,160,604 to 908,086 for Governor Smith.

Louis L. Emmerson, who defeated L. N. Small for renomination, for governor on the Republican ticket last April, polled 953,417 votes in 1,321 precincts against 745,265 for Floyd Thompson, the Democratic candidate.

In the senatorial race 3,719 precincts had been heard from giving the contest to Otis Glenn, Republican, with 725,815 votes against 695,010 for Anton Cermak, the wet Democrat.

REPUBLICAN TICKET CARRIES NEW YORK; BREAKS SOLID SOUTH

Governor Smith Loses Supposed Strongholds In Face Of G. O. P. Landslide; President-Elect Will Have Friendly Congress

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith, who has drawn greater crowds than Bryan or any other political figure in this country, appears to have gone down to the worst defeat any major presidential candidate ever suffered in the electoral college.

Herbert Hoover appears certain to equal the record breaking vote of 404 which Harding received in 1920 and is likely to go beyond it.

By carrying all of the fifty-one electoral votes which still remain in doubt, Smith could only equal the low vote of 127 which James M. Cox, Democratic candidate, received in 1920.

Yet in face of this disaster, Smith is polling a tremendous vote and while he lost his own state of New York he is still slightly ahead in doubtful Massachusetts. Stranger yet, he is leading in Utah, one of the two states to stay with Taft in 1912. Smith is running strong in Rhode Island, which still is doubtful.

Hoover is upsetting all expectations by his terrific vote in the south. He has carried Virginia and is ahead in Florida. In Texas he and Smith have been seesawing back and forth for twelve hours.

On the basis of United Press figures from all sections of the country the tabulations today stood as follows:

Electoral vote: Hoover 404; Smith 51; doubtful 46.

Popular vote: Total 21,919,738; Hoover 12,447,179; Smith 9,472,569. Hoover majority 2,974,620.

Governor Smith took Rhode Island out of the doubtful column when he carried it by the slender margin of 1,493 votes according to unofficial returns, which gave Smith 118,951; Hoover 117,458.

In only two southern states did Hoover fail to register an impressive vote—South Carolina and Louisiana. He has carried the entire border including Maryland, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri and Oklahoma.

His victory in Virginia and his close race in Florida and Texas surpassed all expectations on the part of his managers. They had hoped to get North Carolina but lost that.

While Smith had no victories to his credit in the farm belt, he registered an impressive vote in some states, particularly Illinois. In Nebraska, however, even the help of Senator Norris failed to bring him within hailing distance of Hoover. And in progressive Wisconsin, the combined efforts of the LaFollette forces, failed to protect him against a heavy Hoover vote.

Senator Hefflin failed to carry Alabama for Hoover, but held Smith to a fairly close lead. Pennsylvania, upon which Demo-

LaFollette (R). Wyoming—(Doubtful).

Selection of the cabinet is the first problem before him. He has given some thought to that and will give more within the next few weeks. As yet, it appears that only secretary of the treasury is a certainty. Andrew W. Mellon, it generally is understood, will be asked to retain the post he has held for nearly eight years.

Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, and Senator Borah of Idaho, are mentioned as possibilities for the highest cabinet post, secretary of state, with prospects favoring the former.

Faramount among all problems which Hoover will face when he enters the White House is farm relief. He has promised to call an extra session of congress to deal with that after March 4, if adequate legislation is not adopted as the coming short session, which does not seem likely. Hoover will give considerable attention to farm relief within the next few weeks.

When the new congress faces him in extra session, Hoover is expected to lay before it a general farm relief program beyond his legislative proposals. Some matters in which he has been particularly interested, such as coal and railroad legislation and reorganization of the government departments, still are awaiting action after laying for years on the floor of congress.

Hoover must select in the next few weeks and only his cabinet but various minor officials.

Partial Returns for Minor Offices

REPUBLICAN TICKET CARRIES NEW YORK; BREAKS SOLID SOUTH

eratic National Chairman Raskob built high hopes and spent much cash, was running ten to six for Hoover.

count was still incomplete early today.

Crushing as Smith's defeat has been—Hoover's electoral vote exceeds that of the Coolidge landslide—he has demonstrated great popularity and the actual vote is closer than the ratio in the electoral college.

The most surprising element of his defeat was his loss of New York, the state which has four times elected him governor, once in face of a Coolidge landslide.

Many Republicans in New York, who had supported him as governor, apparently did not support him for president. His New York City vote was not sufficient to overcome the terrific upstate majorities for Hoover.

Equally surprising was the breaking of the solid south—and his victory in old Virginia, the mother of presidents and capital of the old confederacy.

All through the south, except in South Carolina and Louisiana, Hoover polled tremendous votes.

Smith however ran up a heavy vote in Massachusetts.

Hoover's election was conceded by the New York World and the New York Times, pro-Smith newspapers, within three hours after the heavy returns began to come in.

Views on this page show President-elect Herbert Hoover, who will succeed to the presidency next March 4; Mrs. Hoover, the new "first lady of the land"; and of Vice President-elect Charles Curtis and members of his family. Hoover and Curtis headed the Republican ticket that swept to success in Tuesday's general election.

pite his refusal to endorse the McNary-Haugen bill in any respect. However, after Senator Norris of Nebraska declared for Smith, Hoover announced he would call a special session of congress to deal with farm relief if elected.

Norris failed to carry Nebraska for Smith and his appeal was without fruit for the Democrats in the Dakotas and Minnesota. In Wisconsin Senator Blaine and many LaFollette progressives worked for Smith but were unable to carry him through. Wisconsin was one of the northwest states counted fairly certain for Smith.

In the east, Smith piled up tremendous votes but here again his strategy did not carry him through. He ignored dry sentiment in the south, believing these states would remain Democratic, and he turned to the wet states of the east with his direct appeal for a repeal of the Volstead act and a modification of the eighteenth amendment.

This was thought to be sufficient to carry New York for him but to the surprise of the nation he fell behind. In Massachusetts, Smith polled a tremendous vote and the outcome was in doubt for many hours.

While Hoover was expected to run strong in the south, few anticipated the turnover in Virginia and the strong race in Florida and Texas. Religion and prohibition were the big factors and in all of the southern states the voters broke away from their regular Democratic party leaders who were practically 100 per cent behind Smith.

than Hunt who is a dry modification.

An enormous vote was cast, as was evidenced by the slowness in which returns were received.

Election officials were swamped by the flood of ballots and gave their first attention to the presidential ticket.

The total vote, Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown believes, will reach 2,800,000 the largest ever cast in the state.

Hoover's most optimistic supporters were willing to concede him a 100,000 plurality but they could not hazard a guess on the majority indicated by present returns.

On the basis of returns, the only county carried by Governor Alfred E. Smith was Mercer.

In 1920 and 1924, the Democrats carried eight counties, Mercer among them.

The only proposed constitutional amendment up for referendum, was overwhelmingly defeated. It provided for salary increases for state judges during their tenure of office.

The amendment had lost by more than 125,000 votes on the basis of today's returns.

REPUBLICAN TICKET CARRIES NEW YORK; BREAKS SOLID SOUTH

cratic National Chairman Raskob built high hopes and spent much cash, was running ten to six for Hoover.

The states which continued doubtful this forenoon were: Massachusetts—Hoover 601,589; Smith 616,456.

Montana—Hoover 14,550; Smith 13,473.

Texas—Hoover 235,928; Smith 228,775.

Utah—Hoover 9,809; Smith 10,396.

Hoover also has carried both houses of congress with him by increased Republican majorities. The Republican insurgents have apparently lost their balance of power in the senate. Republican domination at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington has been assured.

Voting broke all records, and the count was still incomplete early today.

Crushing as Smith's defeat has been—Hoover's electoral vote exceeds that of the Coolidge landslide—he has demonstrated great popularity and the actual vote is closer than the ratio in the electoral college.

The most surprising element of his defeat was his loss of New York, the state which has four times elected him governor, once in face of a Coolidge landslide. Many Republicans in New York, who had supported him as governor, apparently did not support him for president. His New York City vote was not sufficient to overcome the terrific upstate majorities for Hoover.

Equally surprising was the breaking of the solid south—and his victory in old Virginia, the mother of presidents and capital of the old confederacy.

All through the south, except in South Carolina and Louisiana, Hoover polled tremendous votes.

Smith however ran up a heavy vote in Massachusetts.

Hoover's election was conceded by the New York World and the New York Times, pro-Smith newspapers, within three hours after the heavy returns began to come in.

About one a. m. today Governor Smith, facing the cold figures as they poured, admitted defeat and sent a telegram to Hoover which said:

"I congratulate you heartily on your victory and extend to you my sincere good wishes for your health and happiness and for the success of your administration."

Smith had been buoyed up with hopes of victory in the closing days of the campaign by the tremendous crowds which greeted him with almost hysterical enthusiasm wherever he went on his Eastern speaking tour.

Governor Smith's campaign strategy in the farm belt appeared to have failed completely. Hoover carried the farm belt solidly depite his refusal to endorse the McNary-Haugen bill in any respect.

However, after Senator Norris of Nebraska declared for Smith, Hoover announced he would call a special session of congress to deal with farm relief if elected.

Norris failed to carry Nebraska for Smith and his appeal was without fruit for the Democrats in the Dakotas and Minnesota. In Wisconsin Senator Blaine and many LaFollette progressives worked for Smith but were unable to carry him through. Wisconsin was one of the northwestern states counted fairly certain for Smith.

In the east, Smith piled up tremendous votes but here again his strategy did not carry him through. He ignored dry sentiment in the south, believing these states would remain Democratic, and he turned to the wet states of the east with his direct appeal for a repeal of the Volstead act and a modification of the eighteenth amendment.

This was thought to be sufficient to carry New York for him but to the surprise of the nation he fell behind. In Massachusetts, Smith polled a tremendous vote and the outcome was in doubt for many hours.

While Hoover was expected to run strong in the south, few anticipated the turnover in Virginia and the strong race in Florida and Texas. Religion and prohibition were the big factors and in all of the southern states the voters broke away from their regular Democratic party leaders who were practically 100 per cent behind Smith.

will reach 2,800,000 the largest ever cast in the state.

Hoover's most optimistic supporters were willing to concede him a 100,000 plurality but they could not hazard a guess on the majority indicated by present returns.

On the basis of returns, the only county carried by Governor Alfred E. Smith was Mercer.

In 1929 and 1934, the Democrats carried eight counties, Mercer among them.

The only proposed constitutional amendment up for referendum, was overwhelmingly defeated. It provided for salary increases for state judges during their tenure of office.

The amendment had lost by more than 125,000 votes on the basis of today's returns.

GAS BLOATING AND INDIGESTION PAINS ENDED BY KONJOLA

Stomach Trouble With All Ugly Symptoms Was Part of Woman's Life For Three Years

The extent to which this new Konjola medicine is helping the people of Xenia has become the talk of the drug and medical trades of this section. Throats are calling daily to see the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug

Store, Xenia, and hear his personal explanation of this surprising compound. At the same time, a stream of voluntary indorsements is received from people of this vicinity describing the remarkable benefits they have derived from the use of this medicine. One of the latest to make a public statement about the work of Konjola is Mrs. Cora Lewis, Osborn, Ohio, (near Xenia) who personally told the Konjola Man this graphic story about her restoration to health:

"I am free of indigestion for the first time in many years," said Mrs. Lewis, "and I want to offer my indorsement of Konjola because this medicine completely ended my stomach trouble after everything else failed."

"For three years I suffered from indigestion so badly that sometimes I thought I was going to die. Gas formed on my stomach and worked upward until it lodged in my throat and chest. Many times I have been forced to get out of my bed in the dead of night and go to the doctor because of a burning feeling from my throat to the pit of my stomach. Nothing that I ate agreed with me and soon after finishing a meal I started belching up bits of undigested food and a hot, sour liquid. Splitting headaches came over me all the time and constipation was another symptom that loomed in my various symptoms of my state of health. I actually dreaded to see night come because I knew there was no sleep in store for me. I took, I believe, all the different kinds of medicines recommended for indigestion but in every instance, the only result I ever got was complete failure to bring relief."

"I was about ready to give up all hope of recovery when a friend, knowing of my condition, told me what Konjola had done for so many other sufferers in the same condition as myself. I decided to take one more chance although I thought it a waste of time and effort. How mistaken I was is shown by the fact that I am making this statement, something I would not have done a few days ago, and I had not helped me. By the time I had finished the second week's treatment I was able to sleep through the night without being disturbed by the pains and heavy sensations in my throat and chest. The burning feeling is also gone and I feel sure the relief is permanent. I am eating anything that I want because the digestive organs have been put in perfect working order. The belching spells, gas bloating, headaches and constipation are all things of the past. Konjola has done more for me than is claimed for it and I gladly recommend and endorse it to anyone suffering as I was."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this remarkable medicine for the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Adv.

Also did Miss Greening prove a perfect accompanist to Miss Zella Soward, who has deservedly won the hearts of her townspeople.

REPUBLICANS BREAK SOUTH BUT DEMOCRATS BREAK FOURTH WARD

In marked contrast with the remainder of the county and the nation, Xenia's fourth ward, located in the East End comprising the colored vote of the community, went Democratic at the presidential election Tuesday. The first time since the Civil War the ward contains three precincts and Governor Alfred E. Smith was given a plurality of twenty-eight votes over Herbert Hoover, Republican nominee. Smith carried two of the three precincts, the total vote being, Smith, 299; Hoover, 271.

When it came to voting for governor, the fourth ward, however, returned to its usual Republican

SMITH'S POPULAR VOTE GREATEST IN PARTY'S HISTORY

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The strangest presidential campaign in generations appeared to have produced this final paradox: Herbert Hoover was elected president by an electoral vote equally if not exceeding the 404 record of Warren G. Harding in 1920 whereas his defeated opponent, Alfred E. Smith, polled the greatest popular vote ever recorded for any Democrat.

At 11 a. m. the electoral standings were Hoover 404, Smith 69 and 59 doubtful. Smith seemed sure of only Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Massachusetts and South Carolina in the heretofore "solid south" and had in addition the five electoral votes of Rhode Island.

The doubtful states were, Montana, North Carolina, Texas and Utah and of these Smith led only in Massachusetts.

The rest of the story was overwhelmingly Hoover.

This standing was based on United Press tabulations of nearly 25,000,000 voters in every state in the union. Hoover was leading Smith by nearly 4,000,000.

Yet Smith lived up to his reputation as a vote getter in that his total vote, even at this incomplete stage, was greater than that cast for any other Democratic candidate. He had nearly 1,000,000 more votes than Wilson had when the latter won his second presidential term in 1916; 1,000,000 more than John W. Davis had four years ago; and 2,000,000 more than James M. Cox coaxed to the polls in 1920.

BUDGET COMMITTEE MEETS THURSDAY

This will be the first meeting of the committee of which Postmaster C. S. Frazer is chairman, and all charitable organizations of the city desiring to participate in the drive are requested to submit their itemized 1929 budgets for the committee's consideration.

It is important that all budgets be on file Thursday night since the quota for the campaign will be based on the aggregate amount of the budgets received.

SCHOOL TAX LEVIES FAVORED IN COUNTY

Proposed extra tax levies for school purposes were approved by voters of Miami and Jefferson Twp. at the presidential election Tuesday.

A projected three-mill levy for three years carried Miami Twp. by a vote of seventy-two to forty-nine. The levy affects voters of the west precinct but not the east precinct of the township and consequently was not submitted to citizens of the latter precinct.

Voters of Jefferson Twp. approved an extra levy not to exceed two mills for five years by a majority of sixty-seven votes, the vote being 167 for the proposal and 100 against it.

These were the only special issues submitted to Greene County voters Tuesday.

Shows Style

Now that so many girls are allowing their hair to grow again, this style of "bob" is to be seen in increasing numbers, on Fifth Avenue daily. The lovely New York girl, illustrating the new style, is Myrtle Miller, of 325 West 84th Street.

She says, "I am certainly delighted that my hair has gotten so much fluffier and more vigorous. And I am not troubled with dandruff any more. At the time I started letting my hair grow, I began caring for it the way which is all the rage among New York girls, now, and I attribute its improvement to this method. All I do is put a little Danderine on my brush each time I dress my hair. It makes my hair easy to arrange and holds it in place. It soothes my scalp and keeps it and my hair so clean, I don't need to shampoo more than twice a month, now. All my friends admire the way Danderine makes my hair look so bright and sparkling."

Danderine does more to bring out the natural color, the gleam and lustre of your hair, than shampoos or brilliantine. It removes all dust, grime and oily film from the hair—tones and refreshes the scalp, gets rid of dandruff. All drug stores have the big 35c bottles. A delicately fragrant necessity for the well-groomed girl! —Adv.

GAS BLOATING AND INDIGESTION PAINS ENDED BY KONJOLA

Stomach Trouble With All Ugly Symptoms Was Part of Woman's Life For Three Years

The extent to which this new Konjola medicine is helping the people of Xenia has become the talk of the drug and medical trades of this section. Thronging are calling daily to see the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug Store.

MRS. CORA LEWIS

Store, Xenia, and hear his personal explanation of this surprising compound. At the same time, a stream of voluntary endorsements is received from people of this vicinity describing the remarkable benefits they have derived from the use of this medicine. One of the latest to make a public statement about the work of Konjola is Mrs. Cora Lewis, Osborn, Ohio, (near Xenia) who personally told the Konjola Man this graphic story about her restoration to health:

"I am free of indigestion for the first time in many years," said Mrs. Lewis, "and I want to offer my endorsement of Konjola because this medicine completely ended my stomach trouble after everything else failed. For three years I suffered from indigestion so badly that sometimes I thought I was going to die. Gas formed on my stomach and worked upward until it lodged in my throat and chest. Many times I have been forced to get out of my bed in the dead of night and go to the doctor because of a burning feeling from my throat to the pit of my stomach. Nothing that I ate agreed with me and soon after finishing a meal I started belching up bits of undigested food and a hot, sour liquid. Splitting headaches came over me all the time and constipation was another ailment that loomed its various symptoms to my state of health. I actually dreaded to see night come because I knew there was no sleep in store for me. I took, I believe, all the different kinds of medicines recommended for indigestion but in every instance, the only result I ever got was complete failure to bring relief.

"I was about ready to give up all hope of recovery when a friend, knowing of my condition, told me what Konjola had done for so many other sufferers in the same condition as myself. I decided to take one more chance although I thought it a waste of time and effort. How mistaken I was is shown by the fact that I am making this statement, something I would not have done if Konjola had not helped me. By the time I had finished the second week's treatment I was able to sleep through the night without being disturbed by the pains and heavy sensations in my throat and chest. The burning feeling is also gone and I feel sure the relief is permanent. I am eating anything that I want because the digestive organs have been put in perfect working order. The belching, gas, bloating, headaches and constipation are all things of the past. Konjola has done more for me than is claimed for it and I gladly recommend and endorse it to anyone suffering as I was."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this remarkable medicine for the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

Also did Miss Greening prove a perfect accompanist to Miss Zella Soward, who has deservedly won the hearts of her townspeople.

The second half of Miss Greening's and Miss Soward's program was given in the costume of 1830 with appropriate music. The guests of the afternoon's hostesses, Miss Sarah Hagar, Mrs. Bayless Thompson, Mrs. Charles B. ## REPUBLICANS BREAK SOUTH BUT DEMOCRATS BREAK FOURTH WARD

In marked contrast with the remainder of the county and the nation, Xenia's fourth ward, located in the East End comprising the colored vote of the community, went Democratic at the presidential election Tuesday probably for the first time since the Civil War.

The ward contains three precincts and Governor Alfred E. Smith was given a plurality of twenty-eight votes over Herbert Hoover, Republican nominee. Smith carried two of the three precincts, the total vote being, Smith, 299; Hoover, 271.

When it came to voting for governor, the fourth ward, however, returned to its usual Republican normalcy giving Myers Y. Cooper a shade of twenty-four votes over Martin L. Davey, Democratic candidate. Cooper polled 282 votes and Davey, 258, although the Democratic nominee received a majority of the votes in two of the three precincts.

Here is how the fourth ward voted:

Precinct 12—For president; Hoover, 107; Smith, 103; for governor—Cooper, 101; Davey, 71.

Precinct 13—For president—Hoover, 53; Smith, 62; for governor—Cooper, 57; Davey, 60.

Precinct 14—For president: Hoover, 111; Smith, 134; for governor—Cooper, 124; Davey, 127.

Moreover, the ward gave a majority of the candidates on the local Democratic ticket slight majorities in many instances.

AMENDMENT LOSES
The proposed amendment to the state constitution affecting the salaries of judges lost out in the shuffle of the presidential election in Greene County Tuesday.

The measure was defeated locally by a three to two plurality. According to unofficial returns from thirty out of forty-eight precincts, 1,972 votes were cast in favor of the amendment and 4,514 were recorded against the proposal.

LENDEL FIGHTING TO REGAIN OFFICE

CANTON, O., Nov. 7.—Judge William Stevenson, of Adams County was scheduled to arrive here today to try mandamus suit brought by S. A. Lengel to regain his job as chief of police.

Lengel alleges he was ousted improperly from office by Mayor Stanford W. Swarts and the city civil service commission a week after the murder of Don R. Mellett.

Lengel later was sentenced to life imprisonment as a Mellett murder conspirator, but was freed in five months in a new trial.

NO TROUBLE

Despite the large turnout of voters in the presidential election Tuesday and the excited interest taken in the various contests, the police department or sheriff's office made no arrests. No disturbance of any kind was reported during the day or night to headquarters and one of the most quiet elections in history passed without furor.

ABSENTEE BALLOTS RECEIVED LATE ARE FOLDED WEDNESDAY

After being subjected to a deluge of questions all day Tuesday, members of the board of elections desire to clear up any misunderstanding that may exist concerning the method of tabulating absentee voters' ballots that are received by mail too late to be recorded in the home precinct of the voters on election day.

Board members explain that it is often the case where absentee voters mail in their ballots instead of delivering them personally to the board. The time for absentee voting at Tuesday's election expired at midnight last Saturday.

As it happened, seventy-eight ballots were received after noon Saturday, and were legally submitted before the time expired. Poll books and supplies were taken to the various polling places at noon Saturday and all absentee ballots received afterward were held by the board until Wednesday the day following the election, when the official count of votes began.

As they were received too late to be counted as a part of the vote cast in the precincts for which they were intended, they were held over and entered into the poll books by the board Wednesday.

This explanation was offered by many inquiries were received by the board as to why such ballots were not recorded election day.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

JOY AND GLADNESS—The Lord was ready to save me: therefore we will sing my songs to the stringed instruments all the days of our life in the house of the Lord—Isa. 38:20.

CHANGE CONTEMPT FOR LAW TO RESPECT

During 1926 and 1927, 760 murders were recorded in one American metropolis. Of these, 130 were gang killings. Yet not a single man responsible for any of the gang murders was punished, and in 104 of the cases no arrests whatever were made.

In the same city, since 1922, a so-called "beer war" has taken 375 lives, in addition to the deaths of 160 gangsters by the police. This would seem to be a record, but other American cities are not far behind. Practically every great center of population has its frequent gang war casualties and its unexplained murders.

The pitiful inadequacy of the means used to "prevent" these outrages is apparent.

Professional reformers make martyrs of the principals in sensational cases, and, assisted by pardon, parole and commutation of sentence laws, help them to get "another chance." In the majority of instances, these "chances" come to the thief or the murderer as golden opportunities to continue his criminal career.

Through legal technicalities cases are dragged out over interminable periods of time, often resulting in the circumvention of justice. And, after convictions, punishment is delayed through the avenue of "appeals."

Crime repression will come when an awakened and active public consciousness causes changes in our legal routine that will permit the free, unhampered machinery of justice to function, and not until then. We do not need more laws, but less.

Through our own incompetence, we have given the modern criminal a contempt for law and authority and society. When this contempt is changed to respect, we will have solved our crime problem.

LIGHTENING THE JOB

Whether something cannot be done to lighten the growing burden imposed upon the Interstate Commerce Commission and simplify the task set for it by Congress is a question upon which attention will be centered by the Railroad Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States next month.

This inquiry will be conducted by a subcommittee under the chairmanship of Dr. Emory R. Johnson, of the University of Pennsylvania.

The enormity of the jobs assigned to the Commission is reflected in the growing length of the records in some of the cases with which they have dealt or are dealing. When the record of testimony taken in the Southern Freight Rate Readjustment case piled up to 4,000,000 words, it was thought that the limit had been reached, but in a pending investigation the testimony taken has reached 50,000 pages—15,000,000 words—quite enough to occupy for a long time a Commissioner who has nothing else to do.

Whether the resources of the Commission are not being overtaxed, whether Congress has saddled upon it more than it can do and complicated the situation by attempting to do by direct legislation what it has asked the Commission to do, are some of the problems that are demanding consideration.

The man, who used to save his pennies, probably has a son who won't hold on to his dollars.

THE MAIN THING

It is a great temptation to tell the boss all the details and processes by which you were able to get the results he was after. And in the telling of the story it is quite easy to infer your own cleverness and initiative and general capacity in the matter. Probably you are not "kidding" anybody except yourself. That's what we all do—fool ourselves and go away in the happy consciousness that we have fooled the boss. The fact is he is probably bored by your recital of details. He is less likely to get a good impression of you and to give you further promotion than he would be if you merely laid down the result and walked out on him.

CREDIT

If your work is not good enough to make its own speech, no amount of eloquence about it will make it better. The man who blows his own horn leads the parade, but the big fellows ride in motor cars behind the band.

BEING FAIR

It would seem to be very simple and easy to be fair. No matter what our personal opinion about a thing may be, it ought to be quite within reach of our powers to present a perfectly clear, fair statement of the case. But it is not so easy. Try it. Can you really appreciate and understand another man's viewpoint and sincerity about any issue? Can you really state the evidence without putting your opponent in an unfavorable light? If you can, you have an unusually fine, fair and analytical mind.

INTANGIBLES

The hardest thing a salesman has to go up against is the "intangibles" in the mind of his prospect. What's that? Well, the salesman may be almost 100 per cent perfect in his goods and his presentation. He may convince you that his reasoning is entirely correct. He may convince you that his proposition is a little better than the other fellow's. But the thing he is up against and that is hardest to beat is the unexplainable conviction in your own mind that for some reason or other you DESIRE the other fellow's goods. The most human thing about human beings is their childish likes and dislikes. For these strange likes and dislikes they are often only partly responsible. Perhaps they are not responsible at all. These things are there. They are the intangibles of the mind—and they are hard to beat.

NEW YORK—She is prominent in theatricals. She holidayed with her husband below the border recently, where she apparently carried on a flirtation with one of the Best Dorn Caballeros in Ali Mehekkiko!

Her husband happened into the hotel suite before she returned the other night and opened a box of flowers addressed to her. After reading the note it contained he gave her a sound thrashing when she finally came home.

The note was different. It didn't end "With Love and Kisses." It ran: "With Love and Pinches!"

By Way of Report

From a fellow I know comes this expose. He relates that a former English distiller, who is now in the rope and twine racket here, told him that the American bootlegger is not yet help to this fact. Genuine whisky labels are gummed only on the side, and not all over, so that a bottle of real stuff can be spotted by cutting the label with a knife from top to bottom. If it can then be peeled back, the stuff is presumably all right.

Penalty

It's not that I fear him,
But that which might arise,
If he would know our love,
He'd separate our skies.

He'd take all the dew drops
And turn them into hail;
He'd take our daisy fields
And make a stony trail.

He'd change the singing brook

And for each breath we took He'd take the tyrant's toll.

An item for your high-class drama pages concerns Margaret Barker, who will be seen with Katherine Cornell in "Innocence" (I think that's the tag of the play). The gal is a Baltimore deb and the dotter of Dr. Llewellyn F. Barker, one of the country's foremost surgeons, who jingles the blades down at the Johns Hopkins Hosp. However, see Kate Vornel about it, or Guth McClintic, her man, who might give you the full details. Universal has signed Ringer Lardner and Octavus Roy Cohen to prepare gab moon pictures (talking moving pictures), and I understand that Nydia Westman, of "Pigs," took a moviehouse test the other day, and ruined a mess of footage before they could get her to stand on the right spot.

Some more gossip has to do with Eleanor Stanton, the woman's page editor for the Sun, who was assigned to Paris last spring. She met a man in Carlo who asked after her to Jerusalem, after which she lammed alone to Naples. Then she returned and married him in Athens. The groom is Russel Culler, a Prix de Rome winner, now an archaeological expedition in the Malay Peninsula, while the lady is back on the woman's page, spending her salary answering his cables.

Burn Their Beds. Save Lives. Flares made by soaking their beds in paraffin saved the lives of the 10 members of the crew of the trawler Amethyst when it was wrecked off the coast of Scotland recently. The men were homeward bound from the North Faroe fishing waters with 400 tubs of fish and were making for the Pentland Firth when at midnight the vessel struck the Kame of Holy, where the rocks are more than 100 feet high. By blowing the ship's siren and burning their beds the crew, wet and cold, attracted the attention of farmers who notified the Stromness lifeboat crew. The lifeboat was launched in blinding rain and inky darkness, the Amethyst, five miles from shore, was located by the bed flares, and the men were rescued at four o'clock in the morning.

Japan's Youth Puzzle

The modern boy and girl of Japan is puzzling the philosophers of that country. Hishashi Aso, one of the learning writers, says that the characteristics of the "modern gaaru" and the "modern boy," as they are known there, is novelty and pleasure. Foreign clothes, rougish, shingled hair, short thick trousers, huge spectacles and Oxford bags are their equipment, he says, and continues, "They feverishly chase the new. In music, plays, movies, cafes, dance halls, new art literature, they are forever trying to force pleasure." Most of them are schoolboys and schoolgirls, and many of them sneer at capitalism, talk about Marx, jabber about Lenin, and are drunk with their own importance, he adds, but he believes that they are "bubbles that have the fate of a bubble awaiting them."

AWAITING NEW OCCUPANTS

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Prohibition never has been otherwise than a very live subject before the American people ever since it became a national institution. At least, it has seemed so hitherto.

However, we may recall the past as tame, compared with what the future promises to have in store for us, beginning next March 4, or soon thereafter.

The coming presidential term is bound to witness a genuine attempt at enforcement of the law.

The rival candidates' pledges, during the campaign, made it inevitable.

Herbert Hoover, in recognizing existing abuses, undertook to end them.

At Smith dedicated himself to the task of making Volsteadism effective, while it remains unpeeled, with an earnestness that left no doubt he meant business.

It was too clean-cut a campaign issue—as between the candidates—not their platforms—to be dodged or forgotten in the next four years.

The winner will have to put his heart into the prohibition fight, or his administration will be made almost, or quite, impossible, and his re-election still more so.

Dry and wets alike will demand action and, of course, the unavoidable first step is a resolute effort in the direction of law enforcement.

It will not be as easy now as it would have been when—or shortly after—the law was enacted.

If the lid had been clamped on promptly at that time, perhaps it could have been screwed down so firmly, before the wets fairly knew it, that it subsequently would have been mighty difficult for them to lift it.

Since then wet sentiment has come to realize how formidably it can resist, dry morale has suffered considerably, and the bootlegging industry—now one of the most powerful single interests in America—is prepared, with an elaborate organization and millions of money, to defend itself.

Of course, the law can be enforced—provided the administration is permitted to go the necessary lengths to enforce it.

It may be a question if the people will permit it to do so.

With unlimited funds to employ an unlimited number of men, and possibly the authority to requisition army and navy aid—yes, it can be done.

But the sum required would be enormous.

Many highly influential persons, in the multimillionaire and most exalted official classes, would speedily find their toes being stepped on.

The bigger cities would be virtually in a state of rebellion.

Bootleggerdom could be confidently depended on to exhaust every resource and brave every danger to defy the embargo.

Killings would multiply alarmingly. The roads would become too perilous for peaceful folk to travel.

Practically every enforcement official of today agrees that such scenes cannot be avoided if the country is to be dried up.

Yet, it is a program to which the 1929-33 administration is committed.

It looks like a peppy four years ahead—if public opinion stands pat in favor of air-tight enforcement.

Build your room, as you build your beauty ensemble, around some one perfect thing. Perhaps it's a reproduction of an old master, rich and glowing in its colors. Perhaps it's an old Ming vase, perhaps it's a lovely pewter collection or an old satiniwood high-boy.

Any one of these would be a collector's dream. Failing to possess them, take my advice and haunt the shop till you find something that fills your heart with joy when you look at it.

Possess it, at any price within your means, and then go build your house around its loveliness.

Hints

MENU HINT

Leg of Lamb, Gravy
Mashed Potatoes
Buttered Carrots
Combination Salad
Hard Rolls, Spiced Currant Jam
Fresh, Fruited Gelatin
Cream Cakes
Hot Chocolate

The quantities given are for four. The lamb will be nice to serve in cold slices or deviled for other meals. The bone may be covered with cold water and cooked for several hours, then vegetables added to make a nourishing broth.

Today's Recipes

Hot Chocolate—Grate or shave one teaspoon of bitter chocolate for each cup you wish to use. Put in a pan, add an equal amount of sugar, and enough water to dissolve. Add a pinch of salt. Let boil till well blended, add cold milk and let come just to the boiling point.

Buttered Carrots—Wash and scrape carrots. Add a pinch of salt and boil till tender. Drain off surplus water. Add one tablespoon of butter and two teaspoons sugar. Put over slow fire until sugar is dissolved.

Fresh Fruit Gelatin—Dissolve gelatin, preferably in juice left over after canning fruit. While this cools line a glass dish with fresh sliced peaches, bananas, pears and peeled white grapes. Add raspberry or strawberry gelatin and serve with plain or whipped cream. Using lemon gelatin, this combination makes a good fruit melange.

Suggestion

Salt as a Cleanser
Sprinkle salt in the coffee pot and rub well all around the inside with a damp cloth. Rinse with boiling water. It will keep the coffee pot sweet.

Brown Cake, (Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)—Two cups brown sugar, three-fourths cup shortening, one cup sour milk, one teaspoon soda, yolks of four eggs, white of one, three teaspoons cinnamon, one teaspoon cloves, one of allspice, three cups flour. Bake in layers. Filling: One cup sugar, boil with a little water until it will drip a long, fine hair. Pour slowly on the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs, add one teaspoon vanilla, and half a dozen marshmallows. Beat until stiff enough to spread.

While waiting one evening to keep an appointment, in the parlor of an old mansion, I amused myself counting all the useless articles in sight—odds and ends of bric-a-brac, lambrequins, tidbits and ornaments that were neither beautiful nor necessary. My hasty invoice covered more than 150 such articles. Nearly every home would be improved if one went through it carefully once a year and eliminated every item that could be spared. PROGRAM AIMS TO
MAKE FINER MEN

Race Betterment Movement

In January of this year, the third Race Betterment Conference was held at the Battle Creek Sanitarium, Battle Creek, Mich. I am going to give you an excerpt from the address of welcome of Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, who is superintendent of the sanitarium.

"The Race Betterment Movement, of which this conference is an outgrowth, is an effort to find a program having for its aim the salvaging of civilization and the creating of a superior human race. It aims to find some means whereby the degenerative influences that are dragging down the race may be successfully combatted through the application of science. It aims to make our modern so-called civilized life as biologic and health-promoting as is that of the savage living under ideal conditions.

"Why may we not do as much for ourselves as we have done for our domestic animals and our farm crops and garden products? We have fletcher horses, finer cows, more industrious hens, more delicious fruits, more wonderful flowers than the world has ever known before. Why not, through the same means that have produced these marvellous betterments, applied by tactful and subtle methods adapted to human conditions, not only stop the downward trend, but start an upward trend, which by small increments accumulating through many generations, may create a new race of men as much superior to the finest representatives of the race today as our highest types are above those lowest in the scale?"

Dr. Kellogg's inspirational words stimulate us. The factors resulting in race betterment in animals and plants are numerous and of great importance, covering the field of selective breeding, insuring good heredity and environmental factors. Can they be applied to the human family? Yes, and some we can apply right now to ourselves. We are already bred and nothing can be done about that, but we can be thinking of how we can improve our mental and physical health. Are we following the known laws? Are we careful to get the vital elements necessary for good nutrition daily? Are we having good daily vigorous exercise to help keep our muscles and our organs in good physical shape? Sufficient sleep and rest and avoidance of habits that are harmful.

If you are in doubt to what good nutrition means, I suggest you send for our article on Balanced Diet, and for some vital exercises ask for the article on the Atonic Abdominal Wall.

Ulcers.

A—One who has had a duodenal or stomach ulcer always has to take thought of his hygienic habits, especially his diet. If the ulcer is of dietary origin originally, a recurrence of the dietary habits that brought it on will cause it to become active again.

Most stomach and duodenal ulcers are curable with the right diet and medication. The diet is very strict at first and later enlarged. It must be prescribed by a physician.

Duodenal ulcer seldom goes on to cancer. No, there is no danger of children's inheriting this ailment.

Overfat Children

Overfat children are more susceptible to many disorders, and there is no reason at all why they should not be reduced to normal weight. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining weight gives instructions which can be used for children.

Twenty-Five Young Enough

To Marry, Says Young Wife

When I advise young people of 16, 17 and 18 not to marry, I have a feeling that I might as well use this space for other advice, for they are not going to listen to me. There is a time when love is young and fresh, when to get married and have a "little love nest" seems the most desirable thing on earth. What do they want of more schooling, experience, and all the rest thereof older people prate? Love and the companionship of the loved one are sufficient. Now comes a letter from a young wife and mother, pleading with these same youngsters to wait awhile. If you do a bit of good, but I'll print what I have room for anyway.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a married woman and have been watching your column. Some of the letters you receive are really pathetic. In a recent paper a father of a two months' old baby feels very neglected. Being a mother myself I know how much time a young woman spends with her first baby. If he would check up on the following his wife might have more time to love and care for him: Does he tend to the baby while she is busy with the meals or dishes? Will he change baby or must 'mother' do it? Is he willing to do the dishes or other bits of housework while she is feeding the baby, or getting him ready for bed, so that when that task is done she can sit down and visit with him? Is he agreeable or kind to her or does he crab if supper isn't ready on the dot or any other little thing doesn't just suit him? A woman is still conversing at two months, and I know from experience that love can be killed more quickly by such treatment than any other way. When I was a girl, my mother always told us to wait until we were 25 to get married. I was 22 and now I see that it was far too soon. Why some of these girls want to get married at 16, 17 or 18 is a mystery to me. They haven't seen any good times yet, and their bodies are not sufficiently developed. In our grandmothers' time they lived differently and were more developed at 16 than most girls now are. If 16 or 20, for the sake of the coming generation, please dissuade such early marriages. Give them a chance to be strong and healthy and to have their good times before they settle down to married life.

"A CONSTANT READER."

I must say in defense of marriage that if two people are happily mated they don't have to give up good times when they marry. They have them all through life, but two people who doubtfully have a better chance of married happiness when they are old enough to choose their mates wisely—if they ever do choose them, which is one of the debatable questions of the world.

BY-BY, CORMORANT!

"Mrs. Glossy this was the most good natured ladsbird in the west," so Cormorant said.

"Of course, I will not mind," she declared, "and as for thanking me, you needn't! I had a great deal more fun telling the tale than you did listening to it. I do like to talk about my family, you know!"

"So Cormorant bade Mrs. Glossy this a fond farewell and hastened off toward his house near the channel."

So well had Bobolink described Cormorant and the friends that bird had met on his travels that not one of the little group about him had to ask scarcely a question.

Even Sonny-Bunny had listened without saying a word. As for Peter and Mrs. Gray, rabbit they felt as if they knew Cormorant themselves.

Now, however, Bobolink came to a dead stop, and seemed to be paying no further attention to any of them. He had turned and was chirping in a low tone to his little wife.

Peter did not like to interrupt them, but he did not want the story telling ended suddenly as all that.

"Ahem!" he cleared his throat loudly, trying to attract Bobolink's attention in that way, but either the fellow didn't or would not hear him. Finally after several efforts Peter made up his mind to speak.

"Bobolink, oh Bobolink, aren't you going to tell us anything more?" cried he. "What happened to Cormorant when he reached his home? What did his wife say? Did his babies know him?"

Bobolink flitted about and looked at the boy. Then he chuckled.

"I am sure I do not know,"

said he. "It seemed to Mrs. Bobolink and myself all that was Cormorant's own business and as he never offered to tell us we never asked him."

"As a matter of fact, he never told us anything more. When we coaxed him to tell us another story, he said that he was tired and that anyhow he had talked long enough about himself. So we let him go. He left him alone on the buoy where we found him."

"BOBOLINK, AREN'T YOU GOING TO TELL US MORE?"

"We Bobolinks would have been lonesome perched away out there in that channel with only a chance passing bird to talk to for a change and with nothing to do for excitement but fish. The to make it more mournful a sad-toned bell-buoy chimed nearby. But Cormorant didn't seem to mind it. Weary of talking, weary even to watch his brother-fish—he tucked his head beneath his wing as if to take a nap. That was the last sight we had of Cormorant!"

Universal has signed Ring Lardner and Octavus Roy Cohen to prepare gab moon pictures (talking moving pictures), and I understand that Nivola Westman, of "Pigs," took a moviehouse test the other day, and ruined a mess of footage before they could get her to stand on the right spot.

Some more gossip has to do with Eleanor Stanton, the woman's page editor for the Sun, who was assigned to Paris last spring. She met a man in Carlo who asked after her to Jerusalem, after which she lammed alone to Naples. Then she returned and married him in Athens. The groom is Russell Collier, a Prix de Rome winner, now on an archaeological expedition in the Malay Peninsula, while the idebray is back on the woman's page, spending her salary answering his cables.

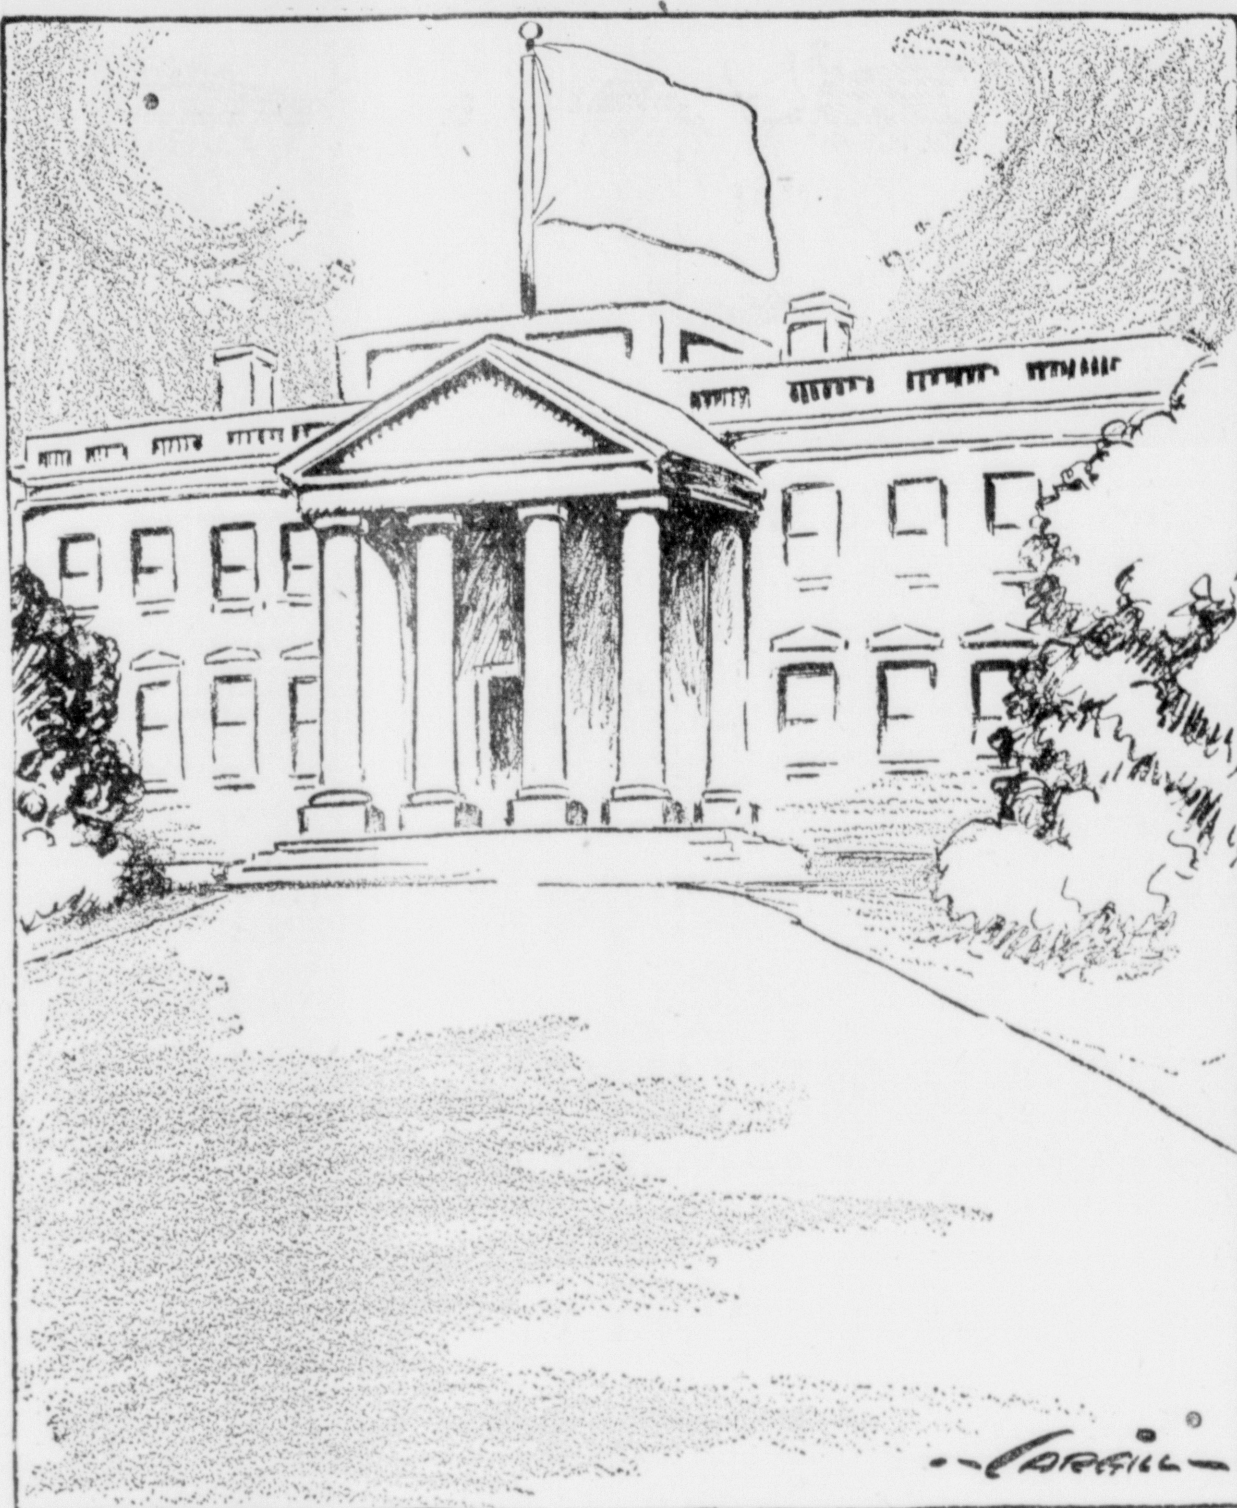

Burn Their Beds Save Lives. Flares made by soaking their beds in paraffin saved the lives of the 10 members of the crew of the trawler Amethyst when it was wrecked off the coast of Scotland recently. The men were homeward bound from the North Faroe fishing waters, with 400 tubs of fish and were making for the Pentland Firth when at midnight the vessel struck the Kame of Holy, where the rocks are more than 1,000 feet high. By blowing the ship's siren and burning their beds the crew, wet and cold, attracted the attention of farmers who notified the Stromness lifeboat crew. The lifeboat was launched in blinding rain and inky darkness, the Amethyst, five miles from shore, was located by the bed flares, and the men were rescued at four o'clock in the morning.

Japan's Youth Puzzle. The modern boy and girl of Japan is puzzling the philosophers of that country. Hishashi Aso, one of the learning writers, says that the characteristics of the "modern gaaru" and the "modern boy," as they are known there, is novelty and pleasure. Foreign clothes, rouged, shingled hair, short thick parasols, huge spectacles and Oxford bags are their equipment, he says, and continues, "They feverishly chase the new. In music, plays, movies, cafes, dance halls, new art literature, they are forever trying to force pleasure." Most of them are schoolboys and schoolgirls, and many of them sneer at capitalism. Talk about Marx, jabber about Lenin, and are drunk with their own importance, he adds, but he believes that they are "bubbles that have the fate of a bubble awaiting them."

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Prohibition never has been otherwise than a very live subject before the American people ever since it became a national institution.

At least, it has seemed so hitherto. However, we may recall the past as tame, compared with what the future promises to have in store for us, beginning next March 4, or soon thereafter.

The coming presidential term is bound to witness a genuine attempt at enforcement of the dry law.

The rival candidates' pledges, during the campaign, made it inevitable.

Herbert Hoover, in recognizing existing abuses, undertook to end them.

At Smith dedicated himself to the task of making Volsteadism effective, while it remains unrepented, with an earnestness that left no doubt he meant business.

It was too clean-cut a campaign issue—as between the candidates—not their platforms — to be dodged or forgotten in the next four years.

The winner will have to put his heart into the prohibition fight, or his administration will be made almost, or quite, impossible, and his re-election still more so.

Drys and wets alike will demand action and, of course, the unavoidable first step is a resolute effort in the direction of law enforcement.

It will not be as easy now as it would have been when — or shortly after — the law was enacted.

If the lid had been clamped on promptly at that time, perhaps it could have been screwed down so firmly, before the wets fairly knew it, that it subsequently would have been mighty difficult for them to lift it.

Since then wet sentiment has come to realize how formidably it can resist, dry morale has suffered considerably, and the bootlegging industry — now one of the most powerful single interests in America — is prepared, with an elaborate organization and millions of money, to defend itself.

Of course, the law can be enforced—provided the administration is permitted to go the necessary lengths to enforce it.

It may be a question if the people will permit it to do so.

With unlimited funds to employ an unlimited number of men, and possibly the authority to requisition army and navy aid,—yes, it can be done.

But the sum required would be enormous.

Many highly influential persons, in the multimillionaire and most exalted official classes, would speedily find their toes being stepped on.

The bigger cities would be virtually in a state of rebellion. Bootleggerdom could be confidently depended on to exhaust every resource and brave every danger to defy the embargo.

Killings would multiply alarmingly. The roads would become too perilous for peaceful folk to travel.

Practically every enforcement official of today agrees that such scenes cannot be avoided if the country is to be dried up, literally.

Yet, it is a program to which the 1929-33 administration is committed.

It looks like a peppy four years ahead — if public opinion stands pat in favor of air-tight enforcement.

MENU HINT

Leg of Lamb, Gravy
Mashed Potatoes
Buttered Carrots
Combination Salad
Hard Rolls Spiced Currant Jam
Fresh Fruited Gelatin
Cream Cakes
Hot Chocolate

The quantities given are for four. The lamb will be nice to serve in cold slices or deviled for other meals. The bone may be covered with cold water and cooked for several hours, then vegetables added to make a nourishing broth.

Today's Recipes

Hot Chocolate—Grate or shave one teaspoon of bitter chocolate for each cup you wish to use. Put in a pan, add an equal amount of sugar, and enough water to dissolve. Add a pinch of salt. Let boil till well blended, add cold milk and let come just to the boiling point.

Buttered Carrots—Wash and scrape carrots. Add a pinch of salt and boil till tender. Drain off surplus water. Add one tablespoon of butter and two teaspoons sugar. Put over low fire until sugar is dissolved.

Fresh Fruit Gelatin—Dissolve gelatin, preferably in juice left over after canning fruit. While this cools line a glass dish with fresh sliced peaches, bananas, pears and peeled white grapes. Add raspberry or strawberry gelatin and serve with plain or whipped cream. Using lemon gelatin, this combination makes a good fruit melange.

Suggestion

Salt as a Cleanser Sprinkle salt in the coffee pot and rub well all around the inside with a damp cloth. Rinse with boiling water. It will keep the coffee pot sweet.

Brown Cake. (Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)—Two cups brown sugar, three-fourths cup shortening, one cup sour milk, one teaspoon soda, yolks of four eggs, white of one, tree teaspoons cinnamon, one teaspoon cloves, one of allspice, three cups flour. Bake in layers. Filling: One cup sugar, boil with a little water until it will drip a long, fine hair. Pour slowly on the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs, add one teaspoon vanilla, and half a dozen marshmallows. Beat until stiff enough to spread.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

While waiting one evening to keep an appointment, in the parlor of an old mansion, I amused myself counting all the useless articles in sight—odds and ends of bric-a-brac, lambrequins, tidies and ornaments that were neither beautiful nor necessary. My hasty invoice covered more than 150 such articles. Nearly every home would be improved if one went through it carefully once a year and eliminated everything that could be spared. RACE BETTERMENT PROGRAM AIMS TO MAKE FINER MEN

Race Betterment Movement In January of this year, the third Race Betterment Conference was held at the Battle Creek Sanitarium, Battle Creek, Mich. I am going to give you an excerpt from the address of welcome of Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, who is superintendent of the sanitarium.

"The Race Betterment Movement, of which this conference is an outgrowth, is an effort to find a program having for its aim the salvaging of civilization and the creating of a superior human race. It aims to find some means whereby the degenerative influences that are dragging down the race may be successfully combatted through the application of science. It aims to make our modern so-called civilized life as biologic and health-promoting as is that of the savage living under ideal conditions.

"Why may we not do as much for ourselves as we have done for our domestic animals? Is our farm crops and garden products? We have fatter horses, finer cows, more industrious hens, more delicious fruits, more wonderful flowers than the world has ever known before. Why not, through the same means that have produced these marvellous betterments, applied by tactful and subtle methods adapted to human conditions, not only stop the downward trend, but start an upward trend, which by small increments accumulating through many generations, may create a new race of men as much superior to the finest representatives of the race today as our highest types are above those lowest in the scale?"

Dr. Kellogg's inspirational words stimulate us. The factors

resulting in race betterment in animals and plants are numerous and of great importance, covering the field of selective breeding, insuring good heredity and environmental factors. Can they be applied to the human family? Yes, and some we can apply right now to ourselves. We are already bred and nothing can be done about that, but we can be thinking of how we can improve our mental and physical health. Are we following the known health laws? Are we careful to get the vital elements necessary for good nutrition daily? Are we having our daily vigorous exercise to keep our muscles and our organs in good physical shape? Sufficient sleep and rest and avoidance of habits that are harmful? If you are in doubt to what good nutrition means, I suggest you send for our article on Balanced Diet, and for some vital exercises ask for the article on the Atonic Abdominal Wall.

Ulcers.

A—One who has had a duodenal or stomach ulcer always has to take thought of his hygienic habits, especially his diet. If the ulcer is of dietary origin originally, a recurrence of the dietary habits that brought it on will cause it to become active again.

Most stomach and duodenal ulcers are curable with the right diet and medication. The diet is very strict at first and later enlarged. It must be prescribed by a physician.

Duodenal ulcer seldom goes on to cancer. No, there is no danger of children's inheriting this ailment.

Overfat Children

Overfat children are more susceptible to many disorders, and there is no reason at all why they should not be reduced to normal weight. The result of reducing and gaining weight gives instructions which can be used for children.

Twenty-Five Young Enough To Marry, Says Young Wife

When I advise young people of 16, 17 and 18 not to marry, I have a feeling that I might as well use this space for other advice, for they are not going to listen to me. There is a time when love is young and fresh, when to get married and have a "little love nest" seems the most desirable thing on earth. What do they want of more schooling, experience, and all the rest thereof older people prate? Love and the companionship of the loved one are sufficient. Now comes a letter from a young wife and mother, pleading with these same youngsters to wait awhile. It won't do a bit of good, but I'll print what I have room for anyway.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a married woman and have been watching your column. Some of the letters you receive are really pathetic. In a recent paper a father of a two months' old baby feels very neglected. Being a mother myself I know how much time a young woman spends with her first baby. If he would check up on the following his wife might have more time to love and care for him; Don't he tend to the baby while she is busy with the meals or dishes? Will he change baby or must 'mother' do it? Is he willing to do the dishes or other bits of housework while she is feeding the baby, or getting him ready for bed, so that when that task is done she can sit down and visit with him? Is he agreeable or kind to her or does he crab if supper isn't ready on the dot or any other little thing doesn't just suit him? A woman is still coming back at two months, and I know from experience that love can be killed more quickly by such treatment than any other way. When I was a girl, mother always told us to wait until we were 25 to get married. I was 22 and now I see that it was long too soon. Why some of these girls want to get married at 16, 17 or 18 is a mystery to me. They haven't seen any good times yet, and their bodies are not sufficiently developed. In our grandmothers' time they lived differently and were more developed at 16 than most girls now of 19 or 20. So, for the sake of the coming generation, please discourage such early marriages. Give them a chance to be strong and healthy, and to have their good times before they settle down to married life.

"A CONSTANT READER."

I must say in defense of marriage that if two people are happily mated they don't have to give up good times when they marry. They have them all through life, but two people undoubtedly have a better chance of married happiness when they are old enough to choose their mates wisely — if they ever do choose them, which is one of the delectable questions of the world.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

BY-BY, CORMORANT! Mrs. Glossy Ibis was the most good natured ladybird in the world, so Cormorant said. "Of course, I will not mind," she declared, and as for thanking me, you needn't! I had a great deal more fun telling the tale than you did listening to it. I do like to talk about my family, you know!"

"So Cormorant bade Mrs. Glossy Ibis a fond farewell and hastened off toward his house near the channel."

So well had Bobolink described Cormorant and the friends that bird had met on his travels that not one of the little group about him had had to ask scarcely a question.

Even Sonny-Bunny had listened without saying a word. As for Peter and Mrs. Gray Rabbit they felt as if they knew Cormorant themselves.

Now, however, Bobolink came to a dead stop, and seemed to be paying no further attention to any of them. He had turned and was chirping in a low tone to his little wife.

Peter did not like to interrupt them, but he did not want the story telling ended suddenly as all that.

"Ahem!" he cleared his throat loudly, trying to attract Bobolink's attention in that way, but either the fellow didn't or would not hear him. Finally after several efforts Peter made up his mind to speak.

"Bobolink, oh Bobolink, aren't you going to tell us anything more?"

"BOBOLINK, AREN'T YOU GOING TO TELL US MORE?" "We Bobolinks would have been long since perched away out there in that channel with only a chance passing bird to talk to for a change and with nothing to do for excitement but fish. The to make it more mournful a sated bell-buoy chimed nearby. But Cormorant didn't seem to mind it. Weary of talking, he wear even to watch his brother fish—he tucked his head beneath his wing as if to take a nap. That was the last sight we had of Cormorant!"

FARMERS OF GREENE COUNTY TO ATTEND LIVE-STOCK SHOW

A large delegation of farmers and stock raisers from Greene County is planning to attend the Farm Bureau Live Stock Day at the Butler County Fairgrounds at Hamilton on next Saturday, November 10.

Fourteen Ohio counties are co-operating in an effort to demonstrate market grades and requirements of livestock and to spread information about the Farm Bureau program of cooperative livestock marketing.

Salesmen of the Cincinnati Producers Co-operative Association will feature grading demonstrations of market cattle, calves, hogs, and lambs, and the Eastern States Company will have an exhibition of feeder cattle.

The program, in charge of Ohio Farm Bureau Field Director W. H. Aufreue, will feature the following prominent speakers, of state and national fame: S. H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau; C. B. Denman, president of the National Livestock Producers' Association; L. B. Palmer, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau; Ohio Livestock Co-operative Association. It is not often that so many prominent speakers can be obtained for one program.

A striking banner will be awarded the county delegation travelling the most miles. The meeting will be held rain or shine, in an enclosed, comfortable cattle pavilion. Greene County is urged to attend this program which is free to everybody, except the cats which will be served by the churches of Hamilton.

CURTIS SLEEPS AS VOTES ARE COUNTED

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—"I am gratified with the returns," Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas said today in the first public statement he has made since his election to the vice presidency.

Curtis arrived in Chicago from Topeka, where he voted yesterday, and planned to leave at 10:10 a. m. on the Baltimore and Ohio for Washington. He slept all night and did not know the result of the election until he was awakened this morning as his train approached Chicago.

Curtis had slept through two hilarious demonstrations during the night—one at Marceline, Mo., and another at Fort Madison, Ia. The train was only a short way out of Kansas City last night when Curtis said "Well, win or lose, I'm going to get a full night's sleep."

Up to that hour he had been supplied with United Press returns mainly from eastern and southern states and the presidential contest was by no means settled.

POLL WORKERS CELEBRATE

CLEVELAND, Nov. 7.—Celebrating the victory of sundry candidates, five workers in a precinct here became intoxicated and in their merriment forgot to count the ballots.

One lone woman worker was left with the intoxicated force and in despair she called the election board for help.

Louis Simon, clerk, dispatched a new crew of officials to the booth. He also sent motorcycle police and a patrol wagon. The intoxicated officials were taken to jail and the ballots were brought down to the board of elections to be counted.

THE MEADOWLARKS—Figure It Out for Yourself

CONGRESSMAN BRAND CARRIES DISTRICT BY BIG MAJORITY

Charles Brand, Urbana, congressman from the seventh District, has apparently been re-elected by a majority that may exceed that given him two years ago on the face of scattered returns received from the nine counties which compose the district.

With sixty-two precincts outside of Greene County reporting out of a total of 482, the Republican candidate received a total vote of 6,747 to 3,813 for Harry E. Rice, Xenia publisher, his Democratic opponent, who was also defeated by Brand two years ago.

Brand carried Greene County by a majority of more than 4,500 votes over Rice. Unofficial returns from forty-five out of forty-eight precincts showed the Urbana congressman received 1,170 votes to 3,421 for Rice.

The district is composed of Greene, Clark, Champaign, Madison, Union, Logan, Clifton, Warren and Fayette Counties.

LARGE BUT QUIET CROWD SEES AND HEARS ELECTION RESULTS

A large, orderly and silent crowd attended THE GAZETTE election party Tuesday night to take advantage of the elaborate system of furnishing election returns arranged by this newspaper.

Large, accurate estimates placed the crowd at easily 750 people in spite of the chilly weather. Orderly because the audience clung to the sidewalk on the opposite side of the street and gave police no trouble in regulating them. Silent because, while they expressed their interest by remaining until late at night, they neither cheered, booed or gave any other sign of sentiment.

Whereas a baseball crowd cheers when Babe Ruth knocks the ball out of the lot and a prize fight audience urges on its favorite, the election party crowd Tuesday night, was undemonstrative above an ordinary, conversational tone of voice. The audience, however, appeared to enjoy the elaborate arrangements made to furnish it with election information and did not entirely disperse until after midnight when the result was indicated.

Local returns were rushed to THE GAZETTE office by special messenger from a representative in the election board room and were tabulated and tallied here. State and national returns came in over the National Broadcasting Company radio hook-up, and were relayed to the crowd through the newspaper's big loud-speaker. Other state and national returns were gathered by Western Union. All of this information was shown on stereopticon slides projected on a screen in front of The Gazette Bldg., and most of it was re-broadcast from THE GAZETTE office over a special microphone installed by Harry Hagler of the Hagler Radio Shop. The microphone enabled an announcer in the newspaper office to cut into the national broadcast and give local information.

THE GAZETTE is also indebted to the police department for handling the crowd. Police co-operated by keeping autos from in front of the building and across the street, enabling spectators to stand on the opposite sidewalk and see the screen.

FESS GOES STRONG IN HOME VILLAGE

United States Senator Simeon D. Fess, who has apparently been re-elected for the long term over his Democratic opponent, Secretary of Agriculture Charles V. Truax, carried his home town of Yellow Springs by 288 votes, according to unofficial returns received from the two village precincts.

Fess carried the east precinct by a vote of 246 to seventy and also polled 250 votes in the west precinct as compared with 138 for Truax.

Based on unofficial returns received from forty-five out of the forty-eight precincts, Fess carried Greene County by nearly 5,000 votes, the vote being: Fess, 8,299; Truax, 3,656.

E. Blackburn and C. Meilage, scout officials of Troop 45, will take part in the Scout jamboree at Wilmington, Thursday night, and will serve in the capacity of judges in the contests.

Anyone interested in attending can obtain tickets from the above men, free of charge.

All scouts of Troop 45, B. S. A., will meet Friday morning at 9 o'clock at the cabin, for an industrial hike. Each scout is asked to bring mess kit and food for noontime meal.

The troop committee of five men will also form a patrol and hike with the scouts. The scouts will return sometime in the afternoon and in the evening, the regular meeting will be held at the cabin.

Some interesting features have been planned in the nature of rope-tieing contests for which a suitable prize is being offered to the champion knot tier.

LONG SLEEP MAKES BABY HAPPY AGAIN

"Our baby kept waking us several times a night, until we started giving him a little Castoria after his last nursing," says an Iowa mother. "He slept soundly from the first night and he made him look and feel worlds better." Baby specialists endorse Fletcher's Castoria; and millions of mothers know how this purely-vegetable, harmless preparation helps babies and children, with colic, constipation, colds, diarrhea, etc. The Fletcher signature is always on the wrapper of genuine Castoria. Avoid imitations.

A Doctor Talks About Cascara

It is unfortunate that many people judge the thoroughness of a laxative by its violence. The salts that rush through the system may not even penetrate the film of poisonous matter that has coated the colon. A long list of drugs will "loosen the bowels" but what is the best way to "CLEANSE" them?

The world's best laxative is one that Mother Nature makes in her own laboratory. It is the bark of a tree, called Cascara. True Indians used to chew this bark and reach old age without a sick day. It is the best thing there is today, for any system; best for the blood. The most beneficial in its action on the bowels, of anything yet disclosed. For many reasons:

CASCARETS
They Work While You Sleep

First of all, there is no HABIT formed from cascara. The bowels are not weakened, but strengthened by its occasional use. The occasions when one needs it: aid grow less and less. Its influence is long-felt. You don't find yourself worse bound-up the day following. You do find the bowels more inclined to move of their own volition. The candy Cascaret that every drugstore always has in stock is the ideal form of cascara. Adv.

EDGWOOD SHINGLES

Thousands are using this simple, practical and economical method in remodeling with EDGWOOD Red Cedar Shingles. You simply lay them over the old clapboard siding or old shingle roofs in the same manner as over solid sheathing. This saves the labor and expense of removing the old siding, shingles or composition roofing. No littering up the yard... no damage to shrubs or plants... protection against sudden storms during construction.

No other building material has such flexibility for remodeling as EDGWOOD Shingles. The builder can use them to conform to any design. Whether the alteration is to repair and restore the original; whether the purpose is to transform the old house into a modern home, adding to its size and convenience; EDGWOOD Shingles will enable you to do a better job at a lower cost. The savings on sidewalls is from 9% to 132%, on roofs from 14% to 315%, as compared with other materials.

FARMERS OF GREENE COUNTY TO ATTEND LIVE-STOCK SHOW

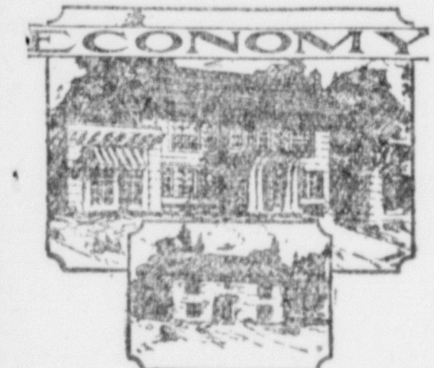

A large delegation of farmers and stock raisers from Greene County is planning to attend the Farm Bureau Live Stock Day at the Butler County Fairgrounds at Hamilton on next Saturday, November 10.

Fourteen Ohio counties are co-operating in an effort to demonstrate market grades and requirements of livestock and to spread information about the Farm Bureau program of cooperative livestock marketing.

Salesmen of the Cincinnati Producers Co-operative Association will feature grading demonstrations of market cattle, calves, hogs, and lambs, and the Eastern States Company will have an exhibition of feeder cattle.

The program, in charge of Ohio Farm Bureau Field Director W. H. Auerbach, will feature the following prominent speakers, of state and national fame: S. H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau; C. B. Denman, president of the National Livestock Producers' Association; L. B. Palmer, and F. C. Lyle, president of the president of the Ohio Farm Bureau, Ohio Livestock Co-operative Association. It is not often that so many prominent speakers can be obtained for one day.

A striking banner will be awarded the county delegation travelling the most miles. The meeting will be held rain or shine, in an enclosed, comfortable cattle pavilion. Greene Countymen are urged to attend this program which is free to everybody, except the cats which will be served by the churches of Hamilton.

THE MEADOWLARKS—Figure It Out for Yourself

CONGRESSMAN BRAND CARRIES DISTRICT BY BIG MAJORITY

Charles Brand, Urbana, congressman from the seventh district, has apparently been re-elected by a majority that may exceed that given him two years ago on the face of scattered returns received from the nine counties which compose the district.

With sixty-two precincts outside of Greene County reporting out of a total of 482, the Republican candidate received a total vote of 6,747 to 3,813 for Harry E. Rice, Xenia publisher, his Democratic opponent, who was also defeated by Brand two years ago.

Brand carried Greene County by a majority of more than 4,500 votes over Rice. Unofficial returns from forty-five out of forty-eight precincts showed the Urbana congressman received 8,170 votes to 3,421 for Rice.

The district is composed of Greene, Clark, Champaign, Madison, Union, Logan, Clinton, Warren and Fayette counties.

LARGE BUT QUIET CROWD SEES AND HEARS ELECTION RESULTS

A large, orderly and silent crowd attended THE GAZETTE election party Tuesday night to take advantage of the elaborate system of furnishing election returns arranged by this newspaper.

Large, because estimates placed the crowd at easily 750 people in spite of the chilly weather. Orderly because the audience clung to the sidewalk on the opposite side of the street and gave police no trouble in regulating them. Silent because, while they expressed their interest by remaining until late at night, they neither cheered, booed or gave any other sign of sentiment.

Whereas a baseball crowd cheers when Babe Ruth knocks the ball out of the lot and a prize fight audience urges on its favorite, the election party crowd Tuesday night, was unadorned above an ordinary, conversational tone of voice. The audience, however, appeared to enjoy the elaborate arrangements made to furnish it with election information and did not entirely disperse until after midnight when the result was indicated.

Local returns were rushed to THE GAZETTE office by special messenger from a representative in the election board room and were tabulated and tallied here. State and national returns came over the National Broadcasting Company radio hook-up, and were relayed to the crowd through this newspaper's big loud-speaker.

Other state and national returns were gathered by Western Union. All of this information was shown on stereopticon slides projected on a screen in front of THE GAZETTE Bldg., and most of it was re-broadcast from THE GAZETTE office over a special microphone installed by Harry Hagler of the Hagler Radio Shop. The microphone enabled an announcer in the newspaper office to cut into the national broadcast and give local information.

THE GAZETTE is also indebted to the police department for handling the crowd. Police co-operated by keeping autos from in front of the building and across the street, enabling spectators to stand on the opposite sidewalk and see the screen.

Long Sleep Makes Baby Happy Again

"Our baby kept waking us several times a night, until we started giving him a little Castoria after his last nursing," says an Iowa mother. "He slept soundly from the first night and it made him look and feel worlds better." Baby specialists endorse Fletcher's Castoria; and millions of mothers know how this purely-vegetable, harmless preparation helps babies and children, with colic, constipation, colds, diarrhea, etc. The Fletcher signature is always on the wrapper of genuine Castoria. Avoid imitations.

JIMMY JAMS

NO FELLERS, I CAN'T PLAY FOOTBALL NO CREMONA SAYS IT'S TOO DANGEROUS

Listening to him, all of Emmy's old belief in her voice came back to her. All the limitless faith she had had in it ages ago, when she had dreamed of the Chamber Music Society, the Friday morning musicales at the Statler Hotel, the concert stage.

"But you're certainly going to start taking lessons again, now that you're earning your own money, aren't you?" he wanted to know.

"I can't afford them—and keep up this apartment, too," Emmy said, promptly. "And the apartment means more to me than even the singing lessons. I think, although you may think that sounds silly."

She smiled at him across the flowers on the table, and said as lightly as she could: "Maybe I'm temperamental or super-sensitive or something foolish like that, but I've got to live in a nice place."

The Little Yellow House

By BEATRICE BURTON -- RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSN. © 1928

READ THIS FIRST:

The little yellow house never showed its true dinginess, because Mrs. Milburn refused to let anyone see it. Her love transformed it to a shining palace where sacrificing devotion made everything out of nothing. Emmy, the only daughter, weary of a hum drum street and Robb Hells, the boy who lived there, and who had always loved her, excited by the attentions the wealthy man she worked for showered upon her, decides to rent a tiny apartment of her own, where her employer, Wells Harbison, and her friends, can see her. Wells is anxious to meet Emmy's mother, and she decides reluctantly to take him down to Flower street.

Wells Harbison commences to make love to Emmy.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLV

He turned, and Emmy could feel his steady gaze on her in the misty gold light from the candles. Some woman-sense told her that he was going to come close to her and put his arms around her, and a queer panic seized her. She did not want him to! Why, she didn't know, but she was sure—oh, very, very sure!—that she did not want him to make love to her. Not then, at any rate.

The thought of it did not frighten her in the least, but it seemed to chill her. She drew away from him as he caught both of her hands and held them, small and quivering, against his face for just an instant.

She found that she did not want him to do even that. She switched on every light in the room, and dropped down into her chair at the little table.

"Let's eat—I'm famished," she said, in a bright, cheerful, unsentimental way, and then suddenly her voice deepened and softened. Her eyes grew dreamy.

"Listen, Wells, they're playing 'Sunset and Evening Star.' It's my mother's favorite song," she murmured. As the waves of radio music rolled into the room, filling it with beauty and the sadness that always comes with beauty, she began to sing:

"Sunset and evening star,
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea—"

For a minute or two she forgot the room she was in—the candle light, the swaying tops of trees outside against the night sky, the man who watched her from the other side of the table.

For that minute or two she was back in the little yellow house. Back in the sitting room, with the Dying Gladiator lamp pouring its radiance over the old piano, over the geantums and the snowy muslin curtains, over the threadbare carpet and the threadbare chairs, over the smooth, brown head of her mother sitting beside the table, and over Robb, with a book in his hands. She was home once more while the music lasted.

Then it stopped, and the voice of the radio announcer swept out into the room, mysterious as the voice of the oracle at Delphi.

"Emmy, you have a very beautiful singing voice," Harbison said, presently, picking up his form.

"What was the name of the teacher you said you used to have?"

"Madame Hartzell," Emmy answered. "She's really just plain Mrs. Hartzell, but she calls herself 'Madame.' She thinks it sounds spiffy, I reckon."

"How much does she charge for lessons?" Harbison asked, and Emmy told him.

"He shook his head over it. 'To think that the lack of five paltry dollars a week had kept her from having a voice like hers trained as it should have been trained. It was he said, enough to make the angels weep.'

Listening to him, all of Emmy's old belief in her voice came back to her. All the limitless faith she had had in it ages ago, when she had dreamed of the Chamber Music Society, the Friday morning musicales at the Statler Hotel, the concert stage.

"But you're certainly going to start taking lessons again, now that you're earning your own money, aren't you?" he wanted to know.

"I can't afford them—and keep up this apartment, too," Emmy said, promptly. "And the apartment means more to me than even the singing lessons. I think, although you may think that sounds silly."

She smiled at him across the flowers on the table, and said as lightly as she could: "Maybe I'm temperamental or super-sensitive or something foolish like that, but I've got to live in a nice place."

That's more important to me than anything else."

She would have gone on to tell all about her plans for the apartment, the house warming and the little card suppers, but he frowned and began to talk about the singing lessons and Madame Hartzell once more.

"Look here, you'd better call her up and arrange for some more lessons right away, Emmy," he said, and swept the room with a quick look. "You haven't any piano here, have you? You'll have to rent one, but it will be worth it."

Emmy, thrilled and glowing from his praise and his interest in her, smiled at him, and her deep eyes shone like gray-green stars. But she shook her head. Didn't he realize that she could not begin to rent a piano on her salary? Why, it would cost almost as much to rent a fairly good piano as it would cost to take the singing lessons themselves!

"Of course, I can understand why you want to live in a nice, comfortable place like this," he was saying, as he knocked the ashes out of his pipe and tucked it away behind the curtains on the window sill.

"I wonder if he does understand, really," Emmy mused to herself. She doubted that he, or anyone else, who had not lived in a place like Flower Street, could understand what it meant to get out of it—that joy and relief it was to live in a fine, clean street above the park.

"You're so lovely, yourself, that naturally you demand a lovely setting," Harbison's voice ran on. "And I think you ought to have it. But I want you to have those singing lessons, too, Emmy. I want to see you make something of yourself. Something fine. I want to help you get somewhere with that voice of yours—"

Then he broke off talking, and stood looking down at her, with his hands thrust into his pockets, for a long moment.

She waited for him to go on and once more she had that feeling that he was going to say something vitally important to her. But all at once he turned on his heel, said "Good-night," abruptly and gruffly, and went.

And when he was gone, Emmy did not know whether she was glad or sorry.

The next morning, to her amazement, he sent for Lucille Ingham and dictated all of his letters to her.

"That's what you get for being a good speller," he said, good-naturedly to her, but Emmy colored up and turned away with her chin in the air.

"He doesn't even let me take his dictation any more," she threw over his shoulder, "so I don't quite understand this extra money—"

But she did understand why it had been put into her envelope. She knew that Harbison was giving her the money for the piano and the singing lessons, and the knowledge was humiliating to her, although she was thankful for the ten dollars.

JIMMY JAMS

"NO, FELLERS, I CAN'T PLAY FOOTBALL NO MORE—MOM SAYS IT'S TOO DANGEROUS"

"But you're certainly going to start taking lessons again, now that you're earning your own money, aren't you?" he wanted to know.

"I can't afford them—and keep up this apartment, too," Emmy said, promptly. "And the apartment means more to me than even the singing lessons, I think, although you may think that sound is silly."

She smiled at him across the flowers on the table, and said as lightly as she could: "Maybe I'm temperamental or super-sensitive, or something foolish like that, but I've got to live in a nice place."

READ THIS FIRST:

The little yellow house never showed its true dinginess, because Mrs. Harbison refused to let anyone see it. Her love transformed it to a shining palace where sacrificing devotion made everything out of nothing. Emmy, the only daughter, weary of a hum drum street and Robb Hellis, the boy who lived there, and who had always loved her, excited by the attentions the wealthy man she worked for, showered upon her, decides to rent a tiny apartment of her own, where her employer, Wells Harbison, and her friends, can see her. Wells is anxious to let anyone see it. Her love transformed it to a shining palace where sacrificing devotion made everything out of nothing. Emmy, the only daughter, weary of a hum drum street and Robb Hellis, the boy who lived there, and who had always loved her, excited by the attentions the wealthy man she worked for, showered upon her, decides to rent a tiny apartment of her own, where her employer, Wells Harbison, and her friends, can see her.

WELLS HARBISON COMMENCES TO MAKE LOVE TO EMMY.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIV

He turned, and Emmy could feel his steady gaze on her in the misty gold light from the candles. Some woman-sense told her that he was going to come close to her and put his arms around her, and a queer panic seized her. She didn't want him to! Why, she didn't know, but she was sure—oh, very, very sure!—that she did not want him to make love to her. Not then, at any rate.

The thought of it did not frighten her in the least, but it seemed to chill her. She drew away from him as he caught both of her hands and held them, small and quivering, against his face for just an instant.

She found that she did not want him to do even that. She switched on every light in the room, and dropped down into her chair at the little table.

"Let's eat—I'm famished," she said, in a bright, cheerful, unselfish way, and then suddenly her voice deepened and softened. Her eyes grew dreamy.

"Listen, Wells, they're playing 'Sunset and Evening Star.' It's my mother's favorite song," she murmured. As the waves of radio music rolled out into the room, filling it with beauty and the sadness that always comes with beauty, she began to sing:

"Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me,
And may there be no moaning of the bar
When I put out to sea—"

For a minute or two she forgot the room she was in—the candle light, the swaying tops of trees outside against the night sky, the man who watched her from the other side of the table.

For the minute or two she was back in the little yellow house. Back in the sitting room, with the Dying Gladiator lamp pouring its radiance over the old piano, over the geraniums and the snowy muslin curtains, over the threadbare carpet and the threadbare chairs, over the smooth, broad head of her mother sitting beside the table, and over Robb, with a book in his hands. She was home once more while the music lasted.

Then it stopped, and the voice of the radio announcer swept out into the room, mysterious as the voice of the oracle at Delphi.

"Emmy, you have a very beautiful singing voice," Harbison said, presently, picking up his form. "What was the name of the teacher you said you used to have?"

"Madame Hartzell," Emmy answered. "She's really just plain Mrs. Hartzell, but she calls herself 'Madame.' She thinks it sounds spiffy, I reckon."

"Does much does she charge for lessons?" Harbison asked, and Emmy told him.

He shook his head over it. "To think that the lack of five paltry dollars a week had kept her from having a voice like hers trained as it should have been trained. It was he said, enough to make the angels weep."

Listening to him, all of Emmy's old belief in her voice came back to her. All the limitless faith she had had in it ages ago, when she had dreamed of the Chamber Music Society, the Friday morning musicales at the Statler Hotel, the concert stage!

"But you're certainly going to start taking lessons again, now that you're earning your own money, aren't you?" he wanted to know.

"I can't afford them—and keep up this apartment, too," Emmy said, promptly. "And the apartment means more to me than even the singing lessons, I think, although you may think that sound is silly."

She smiled at him across the flowers on the table, and said as lightly as she could: "Maybe I'm temperamental or super-sensitive, or something foolish like that, but I've got to live in a nice place."

That's more important to me than anything else."

She would have gone on to tell all about her plans for the apartment, the house, warring and the little tears and suppers, but he frowned and began to talk about the singing lessons and Madame Hartzell once more.

"Look here, you'd better call her up and arrange for some more lessons right away, Emmy," he said, and swept the room with a quick look. "You haven't any piano here, have you? You'll have to rent one, but it will be worth it."

Emmy, thrilled and glowing from his praise and his interest in her, smiled at him, and her deep eyes shone like gray-green stars. But she shook her head. Didn't he realize that she could not begin to rent a piano on her salary? Why, it would cost almost as much to rent a fairly good piano as it would cost to take the singing lessons themselves!

"Of course, I can understand why you want to live in a nice, comfortable place like this," he was saying, as he knocked the ashes out of his pipe and tucked it away behind the curtains on the window sill.

"I wonder if he does understand, really," Emmy mused to herself. She doubted that he, or anyone else who had not lived in a place like Flower Street, could understand what it meant to get out of it—what joy and relief it was to live in a fine, clean street above the park.

"You're, so lovely, yourself, that naturally you demand a lovely setting," Harbison's voice ran on. "And I think you ought to have it. But I want you to have those singing lessons, too, Emmy. I want to see you make something of yourself. Something fine. I want to help you get somewhere with that voice of yours—"

Then he broke off, stood looking down at her, with his hands thrust into his pockets, for a long moment.

She waited for him to go on and once more she had that feeling that he was going to say something vitally important to her. But all at once he turned on his heel, said, "Good night," abruptly and gruffly, and went.

And when he was gone, Emmy did not know whether she was glad or sorry.

The next morning, to her amazement, he sent for Lucille Ingham and dictated all of his letters to her.

HORNBECK LEADS FERNEDING IN RACE FOR APPEALS COURT JUDGE

Roscoe G. Hornbeck, London, O., candidate for second district judge of the district court of appeals has apparently defeated H. L. Ferneding, Dayton, candidate for re-election, on the basis of latest tabulations from throughout eleven counties of the district.

Hornbeck was leading his opponent by 1579 votes and although many precincts have not been heard from, the seemingly safe lead he has rolled up is believed to assure his victory.

Total returns for Hornbeck with the vote nearly complete show him to have received 69,819 votes while Ferneding is trailing with 44,071.

Hornbeck apparently carried Greene County by a plurality of more than 500 votes, returns from thirty-six out of the forty-eight precincts give him 3,448 votes to 2,833 for Ferneding.

The only counties which Ferneding carried according to incomplete returns were Darke, Shelby and Montgomery. Hornbeck carried by large majorities, Champaign, Miami, Preble, Fayette, Madison, Franklin, Clark and Greene Counties.

Russell Gleason has signed for his second talky film with Pathé and is pleased pink. Hear tell Bessie Love and Eddie Foy, Jr. have a grand "case" on each other. Bessie doesn't go in for "crushes," so this entente creates a pleasing stir. Jack Lunden is the only youth extant who entertains in drawing-rooms by doing cock-eyed tricks on a bicycle. This is really a side-line with Jack. He wears grease paint for famous and so well that his contract has been renewed again.

Put Pep in Cold Motors

THE most efficient motors that have performed masterfully through the summer months grow sluggish with the advent of cold weather. Prolonged use of the choke brings about crankcase dilution; slow starting places a heavy load on the battery; even the minutes of delay in the early morning start, tires the nerves of the driver. Avoid all this by using Loreco 88, the ideal winter time gas. It puts surprising pep in cold motors. And Loreco 88 Ethyl, the same remarkable fuel, to which Ethyl Fluid is added in the Loreco Refineries, affords all these qualities and in addition, it knocks out that knock. Both fuels vaporize perfectly at a temperature far below that at which ordinary gasoline vaporizes. Both are now available at Loreco Stations at no increase in price.
